

Give

Eat, Drink + Think

Gourmet Kosher Restaurant Set To Open At Tulane

June 7, 2017 | By Michelle Honig

Tulane Hillel/Instagram

Kosher-keeping freshmen heading to Tulane this fall will finally have an easy time gaining the freshman fifteen like their fellow (non-kosher-keeping) classmates: gourmet kosher food will be available at the university's Hillel house.

Fat Tuesday Our Way – The Best Jewish Food In New Orleans

Sophia Marie Unterman February 28, 2017

This August, a restaurant called Rimon -- which is hebrew for pomegranate -- will open at 912 Broadway Street. The chef, Daniel Esses, has worked in some of the most exclusive restaurants in the country and is a fixture in the New Orleans foodie scene.

A graduate of the Natural Gourmet Cookery School in New York, Esses has created a menu that will feature healthy dishes like a curried chickpea burger and a turkey club made with beef bacon and a Caesar salad (sans Parmesan cheese). The restaurant is open to Tulane students as well as the general public.

Michelle Honig is the food intern of the Forward. Find her on Instagram and Twitter.

The Forward's independent journalism depends on donations from readers like you.

Give Now

Tagged as: hillel house, new orleans, tulane university, kosher, kosher restaurants

Which Ice Cream Brand Is Big, Gay – And Defiantly Kosher?

At Swank Chelsea Eatery, Haimish
Is Hip And Family Is First

previous

next

Copyright ©2017The Forward Association, Inc.All rights reserved. | Contact | Privacy Policy | Terms & Conditions | Trademarks | About |

Jobs

